

I already have a booking platform and I'm not interested in replacing or adding another one.

Please note that the Venue Ideas platform is not a replacement or an additional booking platform.

How will payments, such as deposits, work to confirm a booking?

Venue Ideas does not handle any bookings or payments on behalf of the vendors.

How will a vendor know if there is interest in a specific date?

When the client goes through the process and selects a date on the calendar, an email is sent to the vendor notifying them that a bride or individual is interested in that specific date. The venue then takes over the process, handling it directly with the client, and finalizes the booking independently of Venue Ideas.

What happens if more than one person is interested in the same date?

It is possible that more than one bride or individual may choose the same date. In that case, the venue will negotiate with them and finalize the booking for the person who secures the date by paying the deposit.

What does a vendor do once a date has been booked?

Once the date is officially reserved, the Admin Operator simply needs to mark the date as unavailable on the Venue Ideas system. Therefore, there is no risk of double bookings, as the venue still manages its own reservations.